

“Mosaic Map”

When I think of someone’s soul, I imagine a lifetime of experiences melded together. Some of these experiences may be bright, light, and airy while other may be dark, dismal, and heavy. The culmination of these experiences, thoughts, and feelings meld together to form a whole. When listening in on one’s struggles, you get a glimpse into those pieces. Together the pieces come together to form a mosaic, the connecting lines almost resembling a map. A map of the journey that is ever connected, with ups and downs, but acts as a connector to the pieces of the mosaic soul

Drew Smith